There are 478 milligrams of potassium and 13.0 milligrams of sodium in each Nectarine. Nutrient Profiles are a tool that compare a food to the Recommended Dietary Allowances. The y-axis indicates the percentage of the Daily Value (DV) covered by the consumed quantity. The colored bars representing the nutrient content can be rearranged by clicking on the bar. The nutrient content of a food is primarily a function of the ingredients in the recipe. For example, the mace used in the recipe might contribute very different amounts of selenium, magnesium, or zinc than the canola oil. The nutrient content of a food can also be impacted by processing, packaging and storage. For example, some products have slightly different nutrient content depending on the variety, such as the differences between a Braeburn and a Red Delicious. Here is the nutrient profile of one
